

A unique internship opportunity for Research Psychology Masters students

At the UNISA Institute for Social and Health Sciences (UNISA ISHS), we provide the ideal environment and opportunity for you to further your research skills, while at the same time critically engaging with community-centred knowledge creation and praxis.

The UNISA ISHS invites you to apply for a 12-month internship for 2018, which may be based in Johannesburg (Lenasia) or in Cape Town (Parow). The internship at the ISHS is accredited with the Health Professions Council of South Africa (HPCSA). Interns will be given the opportunity to work within the Institute's core programmes, the Violence, Injury and Peace Research Unit (VIPRU), Masculinity, Tradition and Social Change Programme, and Transdisciplinary African Psychologies Programme (TAP).

Who should apply: Research Psychology MA students who have successfully completed the coursework component of their MA degree and are nearing completion and submission of their thesis/research report or MA Research Psychology dissertation.

Your application should include a motivation letter, an updated CV, certified copy of your ID, two contactable references, your most recent academic transcript, and an exemplar of your academic writing skills (no more than 5000 words).

Please direct all applications and correspondence to Mildred Dreyer at dreyema@unisa.ac.za and Roxanne Jacobs at Roxanne.Jacobs@mrc.ac.za. If you have any additional queries, Mildred Dreyer can also be reached on 011 670 9601 and Roxanne Jacobs on 021 938-0443.

The deadline for applications is 22 September 2017.

We look forward to hearing from you.
