Dynamics of Hate: Examining Interdisciplinary Perspectives

International Network for Hate Studies Biennial Conference: Call for Papers

November 25-27, 2024

Co-hosted by the University of South Africa and the Psychological Society of South Africa

The International Network for Hate Studies (INHS) is delighted to announce its plans and put a call out for papers for our fifth conference "Dynamics of Hate: Examining Interdisciplinary Perspectives". Co-hosted by the University of South Africa (Unisa) and the Psychological Society of South Africa (PsySSA), this will be the first INHS conference to be held in the Southern Hemisphere, in Cape Town, South Africa, from 25th to 27th November 2024 at Century City Conference Centre (www.ccconferencecentre.co.za). We look forward to engaging with colleagues and friends for our first in-person conference since 2018.

The dynamics of hate and hostility are tragically ever-present as we reach a quarter of our way through the 21st century. Hate occurs in many guises that limit the capacity of individuals and communities to engage in society. Through interdisciplinary communication, working and research it is possible to develop, enhance and build challenges to hate and hostility as well as support those victimised and marginalised because of its vagaries. This conference provides an opportunity for academics, policy makers, practitioners, and activists to come together to share their knowledge and expertise within the area of hate studies and as such inform change.
